

One thing we want all of our clients and youth we work with to have access to is a peer support worker and a crisis support worker.

At Phoenix arise we believe one of the most important things for anyone to have is someone they can lean on and help guide them through moments of life.

Crisis support is something that we have seen time and time again be used as an effective preventative measure whether that is for self harm, substance abuse, dangerous actions, feeling alone, panic attacks and many more.

Right now we have 2 crisis support workers and they have their phones on 24/7 we know at Phoenix arise that a crisis can not be scheduled so we want to make sure everyone we support has access to help when they need it most.

Somethings we do as crisis support workers is grounding/ breathing techniques, we also offer guidance,panic attacks, there has been times we've helped youth get back home after they realized they were in an unsafe situation, we also offer support in times where there is a heated disagreement or situation happening between the family, friends and or romantic partners. We help our clients step out and find their center.

Our peer support workers do things a little differently than most, before our first meeting with a new client we sit down (with the clients consent) their workers, teachers, parents/gaurdians along with our new client and go over our list of programs

The same options we have for covering in workshops except we go more in depth than we have the ability to in workshops

We create a program based of their needs and wants and we add them to our peer support program (the list of programs is attached)

Through our program we start off with different lengths and goals and care plan and update it as they move on through the program

The first is 1 month we get to know them build a relationship and understand who they are

Then we go 3,6,9 and 12 months after the 12 months we give a certificate of achievement for consistency and growth, we show them they are amazing and we highlight atleast 1 thing they've done in that year they had a goal of no matter how small.

They can continue in our program for as long as they need

Through our peer support we also offer 24/7 crisis support so we are always there when they need us most.

We also help with conflict resolution in the moment whether that's with their parents guardian or partners/ friends because we know that sometimes grounding in these moments can be some of the most difficult.

We don't take the role as a therapist we take the role as a support, and guidance

For this we are requesting BLANK AMOUNT OF MONEY
AND THIS IS HOW WE GOT THESE NUMBERS
